Located between Collinsville and East St. Louis, Illinois on I. 55-70 and U.S. 40-66.

Monks Mound, the world's largest man-made prehistoric earthen mound, was built by Indians of the Mississippian Culture between A.D. 900 and 1200. Covering 14 acres at the base, it is 100 feet high with four terraces. A large building, probably a temple, once stood on top.
